Local Physician Participates in Surgical Video Webcast

OR-Live.com is the Web's largest source of live and on-demand surgical video from leading hospitals and academic institutions. Featuring over 275 live and on-demand events and more than 300 hours of programming, OR-Live.com is viewed by audiences from nearly 200 countries around the world.

With the use of streaming video technology OR-Live brings the operating room to the computer screens of thousands of viewers at a time. OR-Live's servers have the capacity for over 150,000 simultaneous viewers to any given program.

Peoria physician, Dr. James Maxey of Great Plains Orthopedics, is one of a 3 member team presenting the Gamma3™ implant system on the OR-Live Webcasts. Dr. Maxey, Christopher Born, M.D and Robert Probe, M.D were involved in the development and design of the Gamma3. Their presentation helps participating surgeons understand the minimally invasive method this system offers.

OR-Live Webcasts encompass a wide range of surgical procedures, from heart valve replacements to organ transplants to orthopedic procedures such as knee and hip replacements and shoulder surgeries. The Webcasts typically feature innovative new procedures, many of which are minimally invasive, providing patients with the advantages of faster recovery, less pain and an enhanced quality of life.

Viewers can e-mail questions about the surgery as they watch, some of which are answered in real time by a specialist, who serves as the Webcast host and operating room narrator, along with the surgical team.

Viewing a Webcast requires downloading RealPlayer, a free video software program from Real Networks, Inc., that encodes and broadcasts video, audio and synchronized graphics.

For more information on OR-Live Webcasts and Dr. Maxey's presentation contact Chris Shireman at Great Plains Orthopedic Sports Medicine, 676-5546.
